AN ECOSYSTEM OF CONTINUOUS LEARNING

The evolving landscape of management education has necessitated a shift in understanding of the concept of learning. Learning involves continuous and constant unlearning and relearning and thus the minds must be trained to constantly relearn and evolve.

Human minds have the potential to create possibilities out of exceedingly difficult situations, provided they are equipped with the right attitude, required aptitude and willingness to perform. Understanding human drives that foster higher performance is the ultimate skill needed for managers in today's workplace.

Emotional Intelligence equipped with empathy, patience and sense of service helps leaders prevail over their workforce. Development of creative and innovative minds with an ability to think critically and out of the box is the essence of efficacious management education.

Delhi School of Business strives to impart an optimal blend of perfection and innovative imperfection just fit to foster the conventional technical learning amalgamated with the creative and ingenious thinking ability. Students are a part of a learning ecosystem where learning is a continuous process inside and outside the classrooms.

Alfred North Whitehead once observed that "the secondhandedness of the learned world is the secret of its mediocrity." The students at Delhi School of Business are trained to learn from their own first-hand experience supplemented with the theoretical facets of learning.

We at Delhi School of Business Strive to create well educated managers, implementing management education in their real lives, continuously learning, to achieve the citadels of glory and success.

The 2 years I have spent at DSB have helped me find myself a little better. The faculty has been supportive through and through and the course is developed in such a way that helped me gain an in-depth understanding of not only business problems but also human relationships in the workplace. The course is driven entirely on ensuring that every student is brought out of their comfort zones and inspired to try new things and even overcome certain fears.

DSB upheld a perfect environment to provide knowledge both on the academic and practical aspects of the managerial world. It helped me hone and channelize my skills so I could achieve my maximum potential. The highly esteemed faculty made sure that I was always on the right path throughout the program. Choosing a college for MBA was a tough choice for me as a student, but yes, I've successfully made the right choice going ahead with DSB. The focus of DSB is at imparting knowledge through cases, presentations, reports and live sessions from industry experts.

The faculty at DSB have always been motivating us even when we haven't seen each other and remained in contact online. Teachers have also encouraged us to take an initiative in moving out of our comfort zone and achieve something big.

For me, Delhi School of Business is a platform which helped me grow into a "better version of myself." By saying this, I don't just mean it helped me grow in terms of my academics but also in my overall development. With some of the finest teachers and fellow mates, I was able to grow personally and academically.

I will always be grateful to DSB and all the teachers who believed in me when I didn't believe in myself.
